

Finish us! shouted Profethius defiantly. Although no audible sound could be heard, they felt a voice tell them that a fate much worse than death awaited them...they were to live. Three warriors, the greatest of their time, are charged with the protection of a living goddess...only to fail. Their punishment for failure is the curse of immortality or perhaps, they have been spared death so that they may redeem themselves on the goddess next incarnation. In this episode we follow Abhay in his quest for the next location of the goddess manifestation. On his journey he will encounter historical figures such as Alexander and Lord Buddha, compete in the Olympics of 274 B.C. and wage war in the Near East, Burma and Vietnam. He will fall in love once, an enduring love that will stay with him until the end. A collection of stories that chart one mans life through three millennia and across four continents, sometimes humorous and sometimes sad, Abhay is a fusion of eastern mysticism and high adventure. Immerse yourself in a rich and vibrant historical fiction that gently meanders from 1269 B.C. to the dawn of the third millennium A.D.
